RIGHTLESSNESS IN AN AGE OF RIGHTS

Ayten Gündoğdu is associate professor of political science at Barnard College, Columbia University. Professor Gündoğdu's current research centers on critical approaches to human rights, contemporary problems of citizenship, and political and ethical dilemmas of international migration. Rightlessness in an Age of Rights offers a critical inquiry of human rights by engaging with the works of twentieth-century political theorist Hannah Arendt. At the center of this critical inquiry are the challenging questions posed by the contemporary rights struggles of asylum-seekers, refugees, and undocumented immigrants.
